

The California Roundtable on Philosophy and Race goes to Chicago, Illinois!

October 8-9, 2010

Keynote Speaker: Larry Blum, U. Massachusetts, Boston

Call for Papers

The California Roundtable on Philosophy and Race announces a call for papers for its seventh annual roundtable. This roundtable brings together philosophers of race, and those working in related fields in a small and congenial setting to share their work and to help further this sub-discipline of philosophy. Philosophical papers are invited on any issue regarding race, ethnicity, or racism, and including those that take up race in the context of another topic, such as feminism, political philosophy, ethics, justice, culture, identity, biology, phenomenology, existentialism, psychoanalysis, metaphysics, or epistemology.

Submissions are especially encouraged from junior scholars and philosophers of color. We seek to foster a productive and intellectually stimulating environment for those working in philosophy and race. The Roundtable also aspires to bring together junior and senior scholars to develop and enhance constructive mentoring relationships.

Papers should be no more than 30 minutes in length. Please attach a detailed (2-3 page) abstract, as an MS word.doc or .pdf file (please put your name on the file).

to

organizer@caroundtable.org

Subject heading should read: (your last name) CRPR 10 Submission

Submission Deadline: April 30, 2010

Please see www.caroundtable.org for more information.
For questions, please contact us at organizer@caroundtable.org

Organizers:

Darrell Moore, Philosophy, DePaul University
Mickaella Perina, Philosophy, University of Massachusetts, Boston
Falguni A. Sheth, Social Science, Hampshire College

Guest Organizer: Charles Mills, Philosophy, Northwestern University