The course will consist of a line by line reading of Books I & II of Spinoza's ETHICS. Among the issues to be investigated are God, substance, modes, determinism, the relation between mind and body, clear and distinct ideas, and the limits of human knowledge. If time permits, we will examine how clarity on these ideas liberates one from moral and intellectual bondage.