Foundations of Philosophy of Language This course will cover nine landmark papers in Philosophy of Language in the twentieth century with an eye towards how they have shaped contemporary discussion as well as how they have advanced our understanding of linguistic communication. Among the topics to be discussed are Frege's puzzle, definite and indefinite descriptions, scorekeeping models of discourse, linguistic content and the nature of propositions, propositional attitudes.